Three men injured in crane mishap

Three men were injured Saturday morning on the Illinois 111 viaduct near Illinois 162 when the boom of a crane touched high-voltage electrical lines above the highway.

The accident occurred at 7:15 a.m. as workers removed sections of concrete dividers from the overpass. The dividers had been used to divert traffic around resurfacing work being done on the structure.

GEORGE GLEASON, 47, of Staunton was standing on the tractor of his tractor-trailer, which was being loaded with the dividers, when the mishap occurred. He was thrown from the truck as electricity surged through it.

He said Tuesday from his room at St. Elizabeth Medical Center that he suffered entrance and exit burns from the electrical charge. His feet were burned by the charge just before he was thrown from the truck to the ground.

Two other men, Randy Gilomen, 26, of St. Jacob and Joe Thompson, 34, of East St. Louis were also injured in the accident and were taken to St. Elizabeth Medical Center.

Gilomen was treated and released, and Thompson was admitted.

ACCORDING to a medical center spokesperson, Thompson was in surgery Monday, but the extent of his injuries was not known.

Gleason said he knew one of the other men was much more severely injured than himself, but he was unable to give any details.

The fuel tank of the crane was ruptured during the accident and Long Lake Volunteer Fire Department personnel responded to the scene and washed down the area.

Annexation meeting called for

Granite City Mayor Von Dee Cruse has requested that a public meeting be held between the city and Pontoon Beach to "accurately" inform residents of annexation plans. Cruse wrote a letter to Pontoon Beach Village President Glen Wilson requesting the meeting. Chouteau Township officials said an annexation meeting should include their township, too, because the township is affected by annexation attempts.

Late audit delays talks

By Dave Gosnell
Staff writer

GRANITE CITY — A late audit of District 9 finances that has apparantly held up contract negotiations between Granite City teachers and the Board of Education, has been completed.

But, the audit is not expected to be received by the board until later this week. "The audit is completed. We should be getting it shortly," said District 9 finance director Norm Owca.

Though Granite City teachers have been working without a contract since midnight Nov. 4, American Federation of Teachers negotiators in Granite City and the board agreed to extend the deadline for an agreement until the audit is received by the board.

PRESIDENT Russ Chappell of Local 743 said he did not want to recommend a contract package to the union's full membership until he was able to examine the final audit. An audit of the district's expenditures and revenues is required under state law.

The audit's completion was delayed because the auditing firm, Peat Marwick, of St. Louis, found an error. Owca said the error was caused by a $98,000 expenditure not being entered when the district converted to a new computer system.

Owca said the firm now must prepare the audit on state forms and the audit must be printed.

THE ORIGINAL deadline for the audit, Oct. 15, was extended to Nov. 15 by Regional Superintendent of Schools Gene Briggs when the problem became known.

Chappell said results of the audit could change the union's negotiating position.

MESD payroll threatened

By Dave Gosnell
Staff writer

GRANITE CITY — Flooding in East St. Louis will set the Metro East Sanitary District back about $1.5 million, said MESD director Shang Greathouse.

Greathouse said the Oct. 4 flooding, which was caused when an MESD sluice gate malfunctioned, could cause the sanitary district to be temporarily unable to meet its payroll.

He said the district is being billed for engineering consultants, extra supplies such as sandbags, overtime pay and other costs associated with the flooding.

"I'VE GOT TO pay them. If I pay them, I'm going to be short on payroll," Greathouse said.

Borrowing money to meet the district's payroll is not an option, Greathouse said.

"I'll close this place up if I have to. I'm not going to go into debt," he said. The MESD operates on a $2 million annual budget, Greathouse said.

He said he is "writing to everybody I can" for help with the district's bills. He said he has written to county, state and federal agencies and will ask for Build Illinois funds to help pay the bills.

'I'll close this place up if I have to.'
Shang Greathouse

IN A RELATED development, Greathouse said an electrical panel at the East St. Louis pump station "blew up" on Nov. 2. The malfunction caused the two remaining pumps at the station to stop and caused a portion of East St. Louis to flood once again, he said.

"We had no electricity at the pump station. They had a little flooding at 13th and Market (streets)," said Greathouse. He said about three inches of water formed in the area.

The pumps are under 11 feet of river water. They must be used to keep the water — still at a level considered a flood threat — from building up in East St. Louis storm sewers and again flooding the city.

GREATHOUSE SAID electricity was restored to the pumps within 90 minutes of the electrical breakdown. He said the situation could have been worse.

"In another three hours, we would have had a little problem," he said.

The electrical panel will be removed and sent to a company to be "rehabbed," Greathouse said. He said another panel would be rented and installed at the pump station while the other one is being repaired.

Q: Do you think political campaigning this year has turned off voters?

Frank Fisher

"I think it (campaigning) improved. They let a few things slip. I think it was a little more fair than it was last time. But with Kit Bond and Harriet Woods (Missouri U.S. Senate race), I think Bond was going to extremes on everything. -Granite City

Max Tyson

"It (campaigning) was awful this year. They (politicians) just have too much money to spend. I guess there's really nothing to do about it, but I think people are fed up. I think a lot of this stuff (political advertising) on TV makes people wonder if they should even vote." -Granite City

NEXT WEEK: Did you think the Price-Gaffner race would be so close?

Journals sponsor 'Newsboys Day'

ST. LOUIS — Old Newsboys Day, the annual fund-raising event to benefit children's charities throughout the St. Louis area, will continue as scheduled on Thursday, Nov. 20.

An agreement reached Nov. 7 with publishers of the St. Louis Globe-Democrat and the Suburban Journals insured the event will be held.

The joint announcement made during a news conference by John B. Prentis, publisher of the Globe-Democrat, and William O. Mullins, president of the Suburban Journals, will result in the continuation of the Old Newsboys Day tradition that began in 1957.

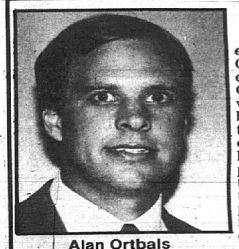

"We're delighted to have the opportunity to keep this very important activity alive," Mullins said. "Although, sadly, the Globe-Democrat has ceased publication, we know there are thousands of St. Louis residents already committed to the 1986 effort. Our sponsorship of Old Newsboys Day will insure that the more than 200 children's charities depending on contributions from this event will not be disappointed."

Recount sought at 43 polls here

By Bill Winter
Staff writer

GRANITE CITY — Congressional voting results at 43 precincts here are to be challenged by Bob Gaffner, the 1,162-vote unofficial loser to U.S. Rep. Melvin Price on Nov. 4.

The Greenville Republican's formal challenge of the election result is to be filed in Madison and St. Clair counites after Nov. 24, when the state officially will certify the winning candidates.

CHALLENGES are planned in all 11 Venice Township precincts, at Nameoki 2-4, 8 and 10, in Chouteau 3-6 and at Granite City 1-4, 7-16, 18-20, 25, 27-29, 33 and 36.

Also targeted by Gaffner are Alton 8 and 32, Wood River 15, 17 and 20, Olive 1, Fort Russell 3 and 4, Jarvis 3, Collinsville 15 and Edwardsville 11 and 14, A Madison County total of 55.

Gaffner presented a petition Friday afternoon at the office of County Clerk Evelyn Bowles, requesting the limited recount, which could set the stage for a full recount later, with the eventual decision being made by the U.S. House.

HE AND HIS attorney, William C. "Chuck" Evers III, of Collinsville, declined to give reasons for selecting particular voting places for recounts.

They requested recounting of votes and also examination and testing of voting and tabulating equipment.

Gaffner said he is not accusing election officials of wrongdoing but believes there is a chance of computer errors as well as the likelihood that some vote totals may have been tallied incorrectly.

THE CANDIDATE will be charged $550 or $10 a precinct for the partial Madison County recount.

The State Board of Elections notified Evers on Monday that a congressional election recount cannot be requested in the district until after state certification.

GOP sees silver lining in dark cloud

To the editor:

The Great Lord God Public giveth and taketh away. On election day 1980, he gave us not only Ronald Reagan as President but control of the Senate studded with some new members who shared Reagan's philosophy — a view of the nation as something far more than an entity with 230 million subsidized people.

The philosopy, internationally, brims with certitude declaring that so long as the Stalinist system prevails in the USSR, war will remain an ever-present danger which the U.S. cannot avert through either rearmament or accommodation.

And domestically, that ignorance of family issues has caused the worst contemporary tragedy — destruction of families of the inner cities, directly traceable to government programs; a recognition that family life is the very foundation of civilized life.

Much has been accomplished in prompting national recognition of these goals — and they were accomplished, for the most part, without Republican "moderates" who are compromising political figures without backbone to resist the liberal absurdities that issue from established figures.

But now the Great Lord God Public taketh away — taketh away Senate seats in Washington, North Caroline, Florida, and Alabama among others — turning the Senate Democratic 55 to 45 and leaving an elderly president in the wind-down phase of his term vulnerable to liberal assaults.

The media's original perception of Reagan will now be repeated by them — as having won his victory from the glamour of the exhilarating, free-floating world of entertainment.

They picture him as the consummate pop politician — handsome, alliterative, who makes a shallow attempt to replace reality with the fading world of the Class B movie.

But it is not a giant step from pop politician to populist (in a traditional sense) politician. So he apparently open to assaults from his enemies.

Questions: In the pop movie line from the 1930s — "meciful God, is this the end of Ricco?" Have the majorities which enshrined Reagan done it only because he was Reagan and fell captive to his charm? Or having given him and his followers great majorities, now changed direction?

Or because they were united on a nostalgic whim — for hawks a return to Pan Americana; for libertarians and Yuppies to retreat to Coolidge economics; for business, a return to the pre-Nader eras for evangelicals, a return to the era before the Supreme Court rejected prayer in schools and endorsed abortion? Or because there was no unifying theme to the GOP's congressional elections?

Or because of the circumstance of 22 Republican Senate seats up at one time and the historic pattern of lower voter turnout in the off-year? Or because the American people believe in the issues electing Reagan but as U.S. society is insecure?

Intriguingly, the answer "yes" can be given to all these questions; they are not contradictory. And they all converge on the future.

Fifty-three throusand additional Republican votes, spread across five states in judicious amounts, would have kept control of the U.S. Senate. Indeed the turnout was, by initial analysis, the lowest in 50 years.

Far from deserving blame for not activating these votes, Ronald Reagan with his spirited campaigning assuredly prevented greater loss — in Missouri, in Idaho notably.

Why did not the additional 53,000 come out? Not because things are going badly for the United States. In bad times, voters throng to the polls. Because things are going well.

Failing to vote, the 53,000 allowed victory to be determined by those for whom, in the main, things were not going well including many who, like the crowds which un-did the republic of old Rome, yearned to (in the words of philosopher-historian Russell Kirk) "became little more than intellectual paupers, yearning to follow some charismatic demogogue or amitious man," for whom it becomes necessary to conciliate by bread and circuses — public doles or subsidized food, gladiatorial shows and other public amusements as well as public works and distributions which must be paid by the taxpayers' purse.

Ronald Reagan was constrained from appealing to the future because, under the Constitution, he has only a bare two years to remain as president.

Criticized for rerunning the campaign against Jimmy Carter, he could only evoke the past and not the future because like Moses he could not unveil a future of which he would not be a part, owing to the two-term limit.

That was the fundamental weakness of the GOP campaign, and Republicans of 30 years ago who punished the memory of Franklin Roosevelt by ram rodding the two-term limitation are responsible.

Imagine if Reagan could have speculated upon the future by hinting he might run again. Would his effectiveness have increased? Of course.

Thus deprived of a theme for the future, the campaign to retain the Senate turned on "Don't Let Them Take It Away" — a theme that never was any good, even when invented by the Democrats in the early 1950s.

How, then, shall we view Reagan's contribution to his country? As one of enormous significance.

The realignment is here in ideological if not partisan terms. Richard Shelby, the Democratic senator from Alabama, is a fervent supporter of Contra aid and earlier worked as a House member with the Administration to pass its tax and budget-cut measures.

Florida's Sen. Bob Graham enthusiastically supports aid to the Contras. South Dakota's Sen. Tom Daschle has voluntarily taken a written pledge not to vote for tax hikes following the new tax law.

Sen. Lloyd Bentsen has taken to the TV air waves attesting, "We support the SDI." How will this mix with the stridency of Barbara Mikulski and the Teddy Kennedy Democrats on the left?

We do not know, but the faithful words of political scientist William Schneider written in the New Republic just before the election hang ominously over the future.

"One of the worst things that could happen to the Democratic party probably will happen this year," he wrote. "The Democrats will regain control of the Senate. Party leaders and political commentators will proclaim the end of the Reagan revolution." However, Schneider said, if Democrats don't resolve their philosophy in the Senate, their gains "will mean as much for 1988 as the gains of 1982 meant for 1984: nothing."

For Republicans the central question begs the future. What kind of leadership shall the Republican party embrace? If it promises to build more on the past without a glimpse of new vistas, it shall assuredly fail. That is a question that can only be answered by the convention of 1988.

In the meantime it is practicable for conservatives not to become demoralized about the 1986 loss.

They must remember that even with the loss of the Senate came an influx of new governorships, particularly in the South.

THOMAS ROESER

Education a strong ally of freedom

No nation on earth cherishes freedom more than America; and America, more than any country, understands the link between freedom and education. Thomas Jefferson said, "If a nation expects to be ignorant and free...it expects what never was and never will be."

These lessons we dare not forget; American prosperity will continue only as a result of educated, productive citizens; our economy is sustained on investment in innovation and the creation of new knowledge.

Our political freedoms assume we understand the issues facing us and are able to make intelligent choices.

Our freedoms of speech, press and assembly are freedoms conceived by educated citizens as essential to an open society.

I believe those of us in Illinois now understand that quality education is more important today than ever in our nation's history. Our economy is challenged by intense worldwide competition. It is an economy driven by science and technology, and one in which America's historic advantage is shrinking.

Other countries have improved their educational systems and increased sharply their investments in research and development. Japan is often cited for excellent schools and highly productive workers, but those who have traveled to China and Korea know that perhaps even greater challenges will come from these countries.

Our children and grandchildren will face a world much more demanding than ours. Keeping America's schools and colleges strong is vital to a healthy democratic society. Our commitment to education and to excellence in people will define our future standard of living and the ability of our cities and towns and rural areas to function effectively.

Education is the ally of a strong American foreign policy. Knowledgeable citizens understand more clearly the complex world in which we live and, therefore, are better equipped to help America protect its freedom and further world peace.

For example, educated citizens can better grasp the challenges of arms control that faced President Reagan and Soviet leader Gorbachev at the summit last month in Iceland. To form intelligent opinions and enter the public debate about complicated issues such as arms control requires more sophistication in global politics and in science and technology than most Americans possess.

For our children and grandchildren, the challenge of living intelligently, at peace, and in a democracy will be even greater.

America's founders understood that education was essential to their dream of a compassionate, humane, productive society. Not only our freedoms, but the very fabric of society requires that the talents of every person be developed to the maximum. A have and have-not America plays poker with the prospects for a democratic society — and everyone loses.

America has much of which we can be proud. Education is more accessible in America than any country on earth. Our schools offer a diversity of programs unequaled in the world.

The freedom of choice and the freedom of opportunity available in American schools and colleges grow out of the same abundant freedoms that characterize the Republic itself.

Illinois' universities and colleges are among the finest anywhere. With all our strength, however, Illinois dare not be complacent. Times are changing.

Our expectations for our schools and our standards of excellence for students must change, too. We have made significant strides during the last two years in reforming elementary and secondary education and in improving support for the University of Illinois and other universities and colleges.

If we are to be successful, however, we must stay the course and recognize that quality education — quality people and ideas — is the work of a lifetime.

During National Higher Education Week, Illinois has an opportunity to rededicate itself to its future: its colleges and schools; its young people; and the knowledge essential to the effective functioning of democracy.

Raised expectations and higher standards are the first essential steps toward a stronger Illinois and a stronger America.

Housing sites for elderly listed

The 1986 supplement to the state's county-by-county directory of elderly housing facilities is available, announced Directors Janet S. Otwell of the Illinois Department on Aging (IDoA) and James Kiley of the Illinois Housing Development Authority (IHDA).

"Housing Facilities for the Elderly in Illinois," published in 1985, was created as a resource for legislators, social service professionals and others who assist seniors in locating housing.

The 40-page supplement to this directory lists housing facilities, both public and private, that are designed for elderly persons capable of living independently.

Housing developments listed include those financed by IHDA, Farmers Home Administration and the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development, as well as those administered by local housing authorities, various church denominations and others identified by Area Agencies on Aging.

Persons wanting information on a specific county's housing or information on where they can access the directory locally may call IDoA's toll-free number at 1-800-252-8966. Service providers can contact the Public Information Office at 1-217-785-3344 to obtain copies of the supplement.

Enterprise zones creating jobs state says

GRANITE CITY — The state government says Enterprise Zone activity resulted in the creation of 5,000 jobs and the retention of 18,800 jobs during fiscal year 1986, which ended June 30. The zones include one here.

"The Enterprise Zone program is designed to further strengthen Illinois' business climate and the quality of life in the communities and counties designated as Enterprise Zones," said Gov. James R. Thompson. "The program has succeeded in stimulating Illinois' economy and revitalizing our local neighborhoods."

In the last fiscal year, Enterprise Zones not only increased job creation and retention, they also spurred corporate investment and local per capita income, records show.

Companies invested more than $181 million in Enterprise Zones during fiscal 1986 — a $95 million increase over the preceding year. During this same time period, the number of companies investing in Enterprise Zones jumped from 268 to 677.

Enterprise Zone "success stories" include construction of a $2.5 million office complex adjacent to St. Mary's Hospital in Kankakee and the purchase and renovation of a building in the Des Plaines River Valley Zone. The latter is a $9 million project undertaken by the Genstar Company, which manufactures roofing products, and will mean jobs for 225 workers.

Diamond-Bathurst, a manufacturer of glass containers for the food, beverage and liquor industries, completed a $2 million renovation of its facilities in the Streator zone, creating 150 new jobs. The firm also will get a state income tax credit of more than $50,000 for using the Enterprise Zone Job Tax Credit.

The Enterprise Zone program aids business and industrial growth and neighborhood revitalization in designated communities through tax incentives, targeted assistance and relaxed government controls. Enterprise Zones are certified annually by the Department of Comerce and Community Affairs (DCCA).

"The Enterprise Zone program creates a state and local partnership,' said DCCA Director Jay R. Hedges. "It emphasizes a coalition of state and local government, business, labor and community groups to encourage economic growth within a zone."

In a recent report by the Committee for Economic Development, an independent research and educational organization of over 200 business executives and educators across the country, Illinois efforts to integrate human resources and economic development are praised.

Illinois has linked its employment, job training and economic development programs in Enterprise Zones. For example, zone employers which hire people who participate in Job Training Partnership Act programs get special income tax breaks.

There are currently 46 designated enterprise zones.

Those zones are Belleville, Belvidere, Bloomington/Normal, Cairo, Cal-Sag, Canton, Champaign, five Chicago areas, Chicago Heights, Cicero, Danville, Decatur, Des Plaines, River Valley, East Peoria.

East St. Louis, Elgin, Galesburg, Harvey, Illinois Valley, Kankakee, Kankakee County, Macomb, McCook/Hodgkins, Monmouth, Morton, Mound City, Mt. Carmel, Mt. Vernon, Nashville, Ottawa, Pekin.

Peoria, Quincy, Riverbend, Rockford, Rock Island, Southwest Madison County (Granite City, Madison and Venice), Springfield, Streator, Summit/Bedford Park, Urbana and Washington.

World language problem is topic

"The World Language Problem" will be the next subject of "Dialogue with Senior Citizens" at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville.

The session is scheduled Wednesday, Nov. 19, from 1:30 until 4 p.m., in the Dome Room of the Religious Center.

Ronald J. Glossop, professor of philosophical studies at SIUE, will address the question of what language to use as an international communication system. English, Esperanto and multilingualism are among the possible answers, he says.

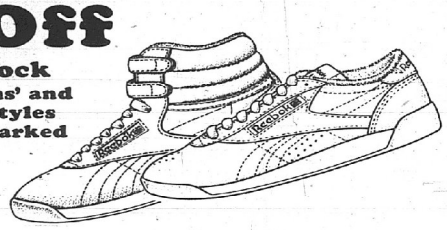

"Dialogue" is an educational and cultural enrichment program for older adults and is sponsored by the SIUE Gerontology Program. Admission is free, and the public is invited.

Hayes family Nameoki area pioneers

The Old Six Mile Historical Society, meeting at Central Christian Church, learned details of the local Boy Scout movement and of the Hayes family's history.

President Marguerite Lexow presided and there was a moment of silence in memory of the late Francis Judd, a member of the Old Six Mile group.

Georgia Engelke, acquisition chairman, told of the many donations given to the museum in September, including three tombstones which have been placed in the yard at the museum.

She said that when Don Murphy, of 4203 Lake Drive, was tearing down a shed in his back yard, he found three tombstones that had been turned face downward and used as part of the floor of the shed. After using a tractor and chain to pull up the floor, he learned that they were tombstones.

As a result, he was interested in learning about the Hayes family. In Mrs. Engelke's research, she found that Henry Hayes, a native of Pennsylvania, hearing about the fertile land of Illinois, came here in 1811 and located on Section 9, where he remained for 30 years.

This was land in the Parkview School area, which was a deep forest at that time. He cleared the land and developed a farm in the Nameoki Township area.

He loved to hunt wild bees, and he built a store house to stock the honey, amassing substantial earnings.

During the War of 1812, Hayes built a block house on his property. Nearby, the Wood River massacre occurred.

Henry's tombstone tells of his death in 1841.

The speaker of the evening was William Monical, Boy Scout Council executive, who was introduced by Floyd Jordan.

Monical began his talk by telling the audience that scouting began in Venice, Ill., before it was established in Granite City.

It was not launched in Granite City until Carl Graham, who was attending college in Jacksonville, Ill., went to the Chautauqua grounds in Litchfield and learned about the Boy Scout movement. It had been formed in England in 1908.

Through the efforts of the late Mr. Graham, veteran local book store owner, scouting began in Granite City in 1917. W.R. Webb served as scoutmaster and Graham as assistant scoutmaster. Archie F. Boyd Sr., R.C. Barney and George F. Chappee served as committee members.

From a small beginning, this troop grew to 86 members and won many honors locally and nationally. In 1918, the troop camped near Ironton, Mo., at a site that later became Camp Rankin. The Boy Scout Council was organized and chartered in January 1920.

Webb became the first scout executive and served for 14 years, Monical said.

In the fall of 1920, Madison and Venice were added to the council and it was known as the Tri-City Council. Boyd was the first president.

In 1921, the scout council purchased 20 acres of land at Ironton and construction of Camp Rankin was begun.

Edwardsville joined the council in 1921, and Collinsville and Troy in 1924. On Nov. 21, 1925, the council incorporated as the Cahokia Mound Council, Boy Scouts of America. Highland was added in 1927.

In 1931, the membership was 878, with an operating budget of $16,000. Then came the further effects of the depression; the budget had to be cut and the membership dropped to a low of 438 scouts.

Cubbing was begun in 1933. In 1939, the territory of Bond County was added to the council and this is the territory that is known as the Cahokia Mound Council today.

In 1939, Graham presented a 5½-acre campsite to the council. By 1943, a summer camp at Camp Graham was opened and 198 boys attended.

Monical praised the late Henry D. Karandjeff, who served as a director and president of the council for many years and was instrumental in persuading philanthropist Joseph Sunnen to donate ownership of a campsite eight miles west of Potosi, Mo. Camp Sunnen was formally given to the council on March 15, 1973.

Upon Graham's death, the council received money which was used to purchase a new council service center. A building was purchased on May 1, 1975, at 2016 Delmar Ave. The center was named in honor of Mr. Graham and dedicated on Oct. 26, 1975.

Monical had a display which showed the kinds of scouting charters presented in the early years.

He also showed a bronze medallion which was presented to the Boy Scouts in 1918 by the President of the United States, Woodrow Wilson, when the scouts here sold more War Bonds than any other troop in the United States.

Monical said that, at this year's School Night for Scouting, 926 new scouts signed up for the program.

Hostesses for the evening were Evelyn Fildes, Alvina Thurau, Dorothy Frohardt and Irma Taylor.

• Recount

The 21st District also includes St. Clair, Montgomery, Clinton and Bond counties.

GAFFNER PLANS to seek discovery recounts in St. Clair and in that county's East St. Louis election jurisdiction, as well as in Madison County. No decision has been made about Bond, Clinton and Montgomery.

The complete, unofficial tally shows Price with 65,965 and Gaffner with 64,803. It is the third successive time Gaffner has opposed the St. Clair County Democrat, who has served in Congress since January 1945.

Mike Mansfield, an aide to Price, said Gaffner might have fared better if the Republican had not resorted to a "dirty campaign" in television commercials shortly before the election day.

MEANWHILE, State Sen. Sam Vadalabene, Edwardsville Democrat, who was re-elected without opposition, said Gov. James Thompson's lead in heavily Democratic Madison and St. Clair counties was no surprise.

Thompson, a Chicago Republican, won an unprecedented fourth term as governor.

Vadalabene said, "He's been awfully supportive of my programs, and practically all of the legislation that I've introduced that gets to his desk."

The senator cited highway projects, Southern Illinois University at Edwrdsville buildings and the Klingas coal-to-gas plant in East Alton.

MADISON COUNTY Democratic Chairman Mac Warfield of Granite City said, "The governor is popular in Madison County. He's a good politician, and he proved that by the votes he got here."

Warfield praised voters for electing Democratic candidates to Madison County offices as well as giving Rep. Price a lead in this county.

William Haine of Alton, a Democrat and chairman of the Madison County Transity Board, said, "I think Neil (Hartigan) would be the governor-elect today if he had stayed in the race."

Attorney General Hartigan, who was re-elected, stepped aside when Adlai Stevenson entered the Democratic primary. Thompson then beat Stevenson after the latter won nomination, resigned and ran as the Illinois Solidarity Party candidate.

VETERANS' GROUPS are expressing shock over the defeat of an Illinois Constitutional amendment to exempt veterans' posts from real estate taxes.

The proposal received majority support Nov. 4 but failed to attain the 60 percent backing that was required. It lost twice previously when the ballot question mentioned "patriotic" groups; this year's question specified "veterans."

An amendment to give judges greater power to deny bail requests won overwhelming approval statewide.

Births

Births recorded at St. Elizabeth Medical Center include:

BOY

Mr. and Mrs. George Lindsey, 1547 Second St., Madison, Nov. 5, Shawn Michael, 6 pounds, 10 ounces.

• Newsboys

Prentis indicated that organizational efforts for the 1986 Old Newsboys Day were well under way when the decision was reached to cease publication.

Old Newsboys Day has raised nearly $3.5 million for the children of St. Louis since 1957," Prentis said. "It would be a tragedy if it could not go ahead as scheduled."

In a prepared statement, Donald N. Brandin, 1986 Old Newsboys Day chairman, indicated his enthusiasm for the decision by the Suburban Journals to continue the event.

"I am sorry that I could not be present for this important announcement," said Brandin, who is chairman and chief executive officer of Boatmen's Bancshares. "I congratulate the Suburban Journals on their community spirit and great sense of public service in saving this important fund-raising effort for the children of St. Louis.

"I am greatful, too, to John Prentis and the Globe-Democrat for their willingness to license this valuable philanthropic activity to the Suburban Journals when they are unable to carry it out themselves."

Brandin indicated that all volunteers who had previously signed up to participate on Nov. 20 by selling Old Newsboy Day editions of the Globe-Democrat on street corners throughout the community should go ahead with their plans to take part in the event.

"I hope all volunteer will renew their dedication to serving this important civic cause and that new volunteers will come forward to join their ranks," Brandin said.

"I also hope the citizens of St. Louis will continue their great generosity in supporting this worthwhile charity. Their contributions have meant so much to so many St. Louis-area children in the past, and I look forward to their increased support in 1986."

Prentis and Mullins indicated that a support staff for the Old Newsboys Day event will continue to operate out of the Globe's offices at 710 N. Tucker. The Nov. 20 edition will be produced at printing facilities operated by the Suburban Journals.

"Those businesses, volunteer groups and individuals who had signed up for the event should continue with their plans as scheduled," Prentis said. "To volunteer or for further information, interested persons may call 342-1244."

Mullins said this cooperative effort to continue Old Newsboys Day should not be interpreted as an effort by the Suburban Journals to revive the Globe-Democrat.

"But the Suburban Journals are proud to insure the continuance of Old Newsboys Day, which has become a St. Louis tradition," he said.

"The 1986 Old Newsboys Day edition of the Globe-Democrat will certainly be a collectors' item in years to come. It will feature information about St. Louis progress, growth and concerns, along with a special section featuring reproductions of historic front pages of the Globe."

In addition to purchasing the Nov. 20 edition of the Old Newsboys Day Globe-Democrat, St. Louis-area businesses and residents are encouraged to make contributions payable either to the Globe-Democrat Fund for Children Inc., or to the Old Newsboys Fund. All contributions may be mailed the Globe-Democrat Fund for Children Inc., Mercantile Trust Co., P.O. Box 422, St. Louis, Mo., 63166.

Madison schools plan open houses Nov. 18

"Schools and Community: United for Excellence" is the theme of American Education Week being celebrated during the week of Nov. 17-21 in Madison Community Unit District No. 12 schools.

All schools will conduct open house programs on Tuesday, Nov. 18, from 3 to 4 p.m. and from 6 to 8 p.m. Student work will be on display and teachers will be available to meet with parents.

Special displays have been prepared in all schools. Refreshments will be served. Each school will dismiss classes early in order to conduct the open house progams.

Blair, Harris and Louis Baer will dismiss at 2 p.m., Middle School at 1:40 p.m. and Madison High School at 1:20 p.m.

The purpose of the special week is to inform the public regarding the schools, gain the confidence of the community in the work being done in the schools, show the community how it benefits from the schools, and strengthen public support for the schools, the superintendent said.

THE MADISON CITY HALL on Third Street might not be too familiar, even to Madisonians, when only part of the top floor is seen. The building was constructed in 1907 and houses both city and police department offices.

State to emphasize business incubators

Director Jay R. Hedges says the Department of Commerce and Community Affairs (DCCA) is focusing on more and improved support for existing incubators in the next phase of the program aimed at giving new small businesses a boost.

"In the past few years, we concentrated our efforts primarily on creating small business incubators," said Hedges. "The time has now come to make sure the incubators we helped set up succeed and that Illinois continues to lead the nation in fostering entrepreneurship."

Hedges said DCCA's plan to give existing incubators added support includes these elements:

• Incubator managers will be encouraged to adopt a reginal approach. "Facilities in western Illinois have already put together a marketing plan showing resources in the area," said Hedges. "By combining forces, several facilities will have a greater impact than any single incubator could alone."

• A network involving incubators, whether funded publicly or privately, will be developed. The network could be blstered via manager meetings and training sessions, computer link-ups where possible and the devlopment of a monthly resource newsletter.

There are 18 incubators operating in Illinois with state funds and a handful of private facilities. DCCA is now accepting pre-applications from those interested in operating an incubator facility. They must be returned to DCCA by 5 p.m. on December 1.

"The first step for an interested community is to submit its pre-application package describing the proposed incubator," said Michael A. Donahue, the DCCA deputy director in charge of the Small Business Assistance Bureau. "It will include evidence of community support, potential services for small business tenants and a proposed incubator location."

Donahue said communities demonstrating the greatest potential for a proposed incubator will be asked to submit a full application for funding consideration. Final funding decisons will be made in spring.

DCCA will step up its efforts to market the incubator program.

"Part of our marketing effort involves the production of technical publications to help incubator managers and others," said Hedges. The publications are entitled "Managing a Small Businesss Incubator," "Guidelines for Determing the Feasibility of a Small Business Incubator" and "Starting a Small Business Incubator: a Handbook for Sponsors and Developers."

Hedges said incubators are proving invaluable to entrepreneurs across Illinois. "By sharing basic business costs when they are trying to get on their feet or expand, small businesses increase their chance fo survival. It is in the State's interest to help them survive, grow and prosper."

State-funded incubators are operating in Monmouth, Galesburg, Macomb, Quincy, Champaign, Decatur, Springfield, Peoria, Evanston, Rockford, Joliet, Carbondale, Rock Island, Moline, Bradley and Chicago (three).

Chemetco workers pass tests of skills

Employees at Chemetco, a copper refinery on Illinois 3 at Mitchell, has successfully completed a first-of-its-kind training programm.

Skilled craftsmen have been certified in their classifications and some in multiple skills in a specialized training program.

The program was provided by Southwire Co., the largest privately-owned producer of copper and aluminum rod and electrical wire and cable in the United States. Southwire is based in Carrollton, Ga.

After reviewing the success of Southwire's training plan, Chemetco employees unanimously voted to participate in the outlined Maintenance Certification Program.

Employees have been trained in the mechanical, electrical, and oiler classifications with some cross-training. For example, oiler craftsmen received mechanical certification and vice versa.

"Our management team was quite impressed with the results Southwire achieved with this training program" said Bill Gibbs, personnel director. "We presented this program to our employees and we have been overwhelmed by their 100 percent support of the project."

The program has been more than a morale booster. Chemetco anticipates a reduction in maintenance costs and downtime; operations have been improved; and people have gained more skills and increased the depth of their knowledge on their jobs, officals said.

Sid Campbell, maintenance superintendent, said, "On behalf of Chemetco management, we are extremely pleased with the enthusiasm of the participants and the instructors."

Chemetco recognized employees in an awards program Nov. 4. The proceedings took place at Chemetco.

Mechanical certificates were earned by: Rosco E. Williamson, David W. Hackethal, Tom W. Simpson, Bruce E. Foster, Wesley O. Lewis, Mark D. Rench, Jeffery L. Johns, Lou C. Meyer II, Timothy S. Herter, Jeff B. Hamilton and Hyman N. Gray.

Ernie R. ABner, Matthew C. Bochantin, Barney C. Knight, Michael E. Corwin and James Broshow earned electrical certificates.

Michael J. Hanneken, James D. Stanton, Joe B. Dixon and Brian P. Sumner earned both mechanical and oiler certificates.

New York' theme for Belleville Hospice fund-raising night Nov. 15

Belleville Hospice, which has added this county to its service area, is planning a unique evening Nov. 15.

"New York 1830s theme will be featured in the food, music, speakeasies" and Cotton Club entertainers.

Bruce Bradley, KMOX Radio midmorning host, will serve as the master of ceremonies of the evening, which will begin with a social hour and song stysts Jeanne Trevor and Peanuts Whalum.

Dinner will feature recipes from restaurants of New York, starting with prime tenderloin of beef, and finishing with Lindy's cheesecake.

A one-hour auction, featuring among other items, a weekend for two at the Plaza in New York City, will be conducted by Terry "Bones" Allen.

A 90-minute Cotton Club review will feature the Hugh Whalum Group, songstress Trevor and special guest Elmer Schrodi, saxophonists the Bosman twins, xylophonist Ernie Players, tap dancer Ray Peters, who appeared on the Ed Sullivan Show, and eight of the Salem dancers of Granite City. The evening will be topped off with dancing until 1.

The evening of dining, dancing, entertainment and surprises will be held at Fischer's Restaurant, 2100 W. Main St., Belleville. Tickets are $40 per person and must be purchased in advance; for information, the Belleville Hospice office can be called at 235-1703.

Belleville Hospice is a non-profit organization that has been helping terminally ill patients and their families in St. Clair Conty without regard for race, color, creed or ability to pay, for five years. It recently increased its service lines to also cover the Illinois counties of Madison, Monroe, Washington, Randolph and Clinton. Belleville Hospice is one of only two "free-standing hospices" in the state to receive Medicare certification.

Mildew removal challenge for recent flood victims

The recent rainy weather and warm temperatures will make this year's fall cleanup a little extra-challenging for many homeowners. That's becaue mildew lingers — and continues to grow — long after the skies have cleared.

Mildew grows best under warm, damp conditions. The best advice is to prevent the growth of mildew before it begins.

But for people whose homes flooded, that advice isn't very practical. Instead, they need to work on removing the mildew and preventing its spread.

Fabrics pose a special challenge. Just scraping and rinsing won't do the job on clothing and home furnishings. Prompt and thorough treatment is essential if these items are to be saved. To treat clothing for mildew damage:

- Brush off any surface growth outdoors to prevent scattering the spores in the house.
- Sun and air fabrics thoroughly.
- Dryclean non-washable materials.
- Launder washable fabrics at once with detergent and water. Rinse well. Dry in the sun.
- If stains remain, bleach the fabric using directions given on the bleach container. Peroxygen or chlorine bleach may be used, depending on the fiber content of the article being bleached.

Leather goods require different treatment. Wipe the area wiht a cloth wrung out of dilute alcohol — 1 cup denatured or rubbing alcohol to 1 cup water. Dry in moving air. If mildew reamins, wash the leather article with thick suds of a mild soap or detergent. Wipe with a damp cloth and dry in an airy place.

Leather shoes and luggage should be polished with a good-quality wax dressing. The inside of shoes can be sprayed with sprays especially intended for freshing shoes. Use these products as directed.

Home furnishings need special treatment, too.

Mattresses and upholsteed furniture may also support the growth of mildew. Like clothing, these items should be carefully brushed — outdoors if possible.

Run a vacuum cleaner attachment over the surface of the article to draw out more of the mold. Remember that the mold spores are being drawn into the vacuum bag. If the bag is disposable, remove and dispose of it immediately, being careful not to breathe in too deeply. If the bag isn't disposable, empty it outdoors.

Do eveything conveniently possible to dry the article. Use an electric heater and a fan to carry away the moist air, or dry it outside on a sunny day.

If mildew remains on upholstered articles or mattresses, sponge lightly with thick suds of soap or detergent. Wipe with a clean, damp cloth. In doing this, get as little water on the fabric as possible so the filling doesn't get wet.

Sponge mildewed rugs and carpets with thick suds or a rug shampoo. Then remove the suds by wiping with a cloth dampened in clear water. Dry in the sun if possible. Open the window and use fans to dry out wall-to-wall carpeting.

If molds have grown into the inner part of a valuable piece of furniture, send it to a reliable disinfecting and fumigating service. Such services are often listed under "Exterminating and Fumigating" or "Pest Control" services in the Yellow Pages.

Chesterfield hotel welcomes Expo

The Doubletree Hotel and Conference Center will be the ideal setting for the third annual Great Vacation and Travel Expo, sponsored by the Suburban Journals Nov. 22 and 23.

Located in a wooded area of Chesterfield across from Chesterfield Mall, the Doubletree is a 12-story hotel with fine accommodations, entertainment, relaxation and recreational facilities and activities, as well as superb cuisine.

The consumer travel show at the Doubletree will offer more than $30,000 in prizes, including two cruises, and trips to Europe, Colonial Williamsburg, San Diego and a Reno ski package.

Suburban Journals and The Dream Factory will co-sponsor one of the cruises while Royal Caribbean Cruise Lines, Piedmont Airlines and St. Louis Federal are combining to present the other ocean journey. Casey's Sporting Goods, Western Airlines and Advance Registration from Utah are organizing the ski trip.

Consumers may register for chances to win vacations when they visit the Born to Travel in the USA, The World is My Oyster and the Great Travel Theme Center exhibit areas. Films, fashion travel shows and experts on vacation advice will have questions and answers in Doubletree's auditorium.

The Suburban Journals will bring a sample of vacation resorts to the expo. Golf, tennis, scuba and ski experts will discuss resort vacations and advise expo visitors on choosing the vacation to fit lifestyles and budgets.

Resort vacation sessions will be in the auditorium of the award-winning Doubletree.

On April 1, the Doubletree was awarded Four Stars by the Mobil Travel Guide, America's most prestigious and best-selling travel guide. Mobil rated the Doubletree, "Outstanding . . . worth special trip. It is one of 509 hotels, motels, resorts, inns and restaurants among more than 21,000 establishments in the United States and Canada to receive the award.

The Doubletree organization owns and/or operates 17 hotels throughout the country. The property is recognized as one of the Top 10 conference centers in the nation and is one of the best-equipped and most productive meeting facilities in the country.

During the expo weekend, Doubletree restaurants will feature international cuisine. Art posters by students from area colleges will be displayed.

To get to Doubletree, drive west on Highway 40 to Clarkson/Olive, exit right and follow the signs. The conference center is approximately 1½ miles west of the Chesterfield post office along the north access road.

Admission is $4. Half-price coupons are available at St. Louis Federal. Travel agents and Casey's Sporting Goods stores have two-for-one coupon admissions.

Suburban Journals, St. Louis Federal team up at Expo

The Suburban Journals and St. Louis Federal are teaming up for the third annual Great Vacation and Travel Expo at Doubletree Hotel in Chesterfield Nov. 22 and 23.

Monestery gives looks at ancient Greek life

On the western end of the plain of Thessaly in north central Greece, two mountain ranges separate to let the Pinios River roll toward the Aegean Sea.

As the Ice Age ended, the rush of water that flowed across the plain created a unique landscape.

Gray rock formations resembling huge fingers and fists shoot skyward. At the base of each monolith is a green, fertile carpet covering the earth. It is estimated there are about 1,000 of these formations in varying heights.

Man has left his mark atop some of the highest mountains in this forest of stone called Meteora ("in the air"). In the 10th century, hermits came here to live in caves and rock crevasses. As more holy men followed, the first monastery was built on a mountain top in the 12th century. By the 17th century, there were 24.

The methods by which the monasteries were built is amazing. There were no roads leading to the windy summits, so monks climbed by jointed rope ladders. They pulled their materials and supplies up in rope nets. Baskets the size of wheelbarrows were pulled up on a pulley.

The Orthodox monasteries were religious retreats and repositories of art and culture.

Today, there are six remaining monasteries which can be visited. The largest and most magnificent of the monasteries was built in the 14th century under the direction of Athanasius, a monk. It is called the Great Meteoron, or the Monastery of the Transfiguration.

The few monks who still live there have the duty of maintaining and explaining their way of life to thousands of tourists who visit.

Women are permitted to tour the monastery but strict rules of dress are enforced. Skirts and covered arms are required attire and suitable clothing is provided for those who need it. Ladies not properly dressed are given a long skirt to wear over slacks and shawls for their arms.

The 115 steps cut into the mountainside leading to the monastery are only for the strong of heart. Many older people who come in tour bus groups choose to stay behind and enjoy the glorious scenery.

Near the top is a cave that was the original home of St. Athanasius. Guests are welcomed at the monastery gate by a monk in a black robe and hat with a long, gray beard. People are free to tour the complex (except for private cells), which is more a small village than a single building.

The Church of the Transfiguration is in the center of the monastery. Built in 1545, the church is shaped like a crucifix and is topped by a distinctive 12-sided dome. Its interior is decorated by fine frescoes, paintings, icons and intricately carved screens.

Three smaller churches, a refectory, kitchen, hospital and row of monks' cells are along the outer walls of the monastery.

The refectory has been converted into a museum displaying works of art the monks produced when they were required to evenly split their time between study, labor and prayer — leaving little time for sleep. Parchment manuscripts, icons, maps, crosses, vestments and other items are hung around the room or displayed in glass cases.

Off a small alley near an inner garden is a darkened cell with skulls and bones. After five years of burial, bones of the monks are exhumed, washed in water and wine and stacked with those of predecessors. Only the two founders of the monastery, saints Athanasius and Iosaaph, are buried separately in the church.

As the Great Meteoron gained in importance over other monasteries, disputes developed among the communes and many of them gradually deteriorated. Of the original 24 monasteries, only four of the largest still are inhabited: Great Meteoron, St. Varlaam, Holy Trinity and St. Stephens.

St. Stephens is a nunnery. Blue and white-checked curtains hang at the windows, cats snooze in the sun, laundry is draped on a line and flower pots adorn sites.

The monasteries are open daily. Admission is 50 cents. Tours are available from Athens or Thessaloniki.

All of the monasteries can be visited in one day.

The most convenient place to stay overnight before or after visiting Meteora is in nearby Kalambaka, built on the bank of the Pinios River. In the past, it was a rich and famous Byzantine city.

For information on the monasteries, contact the Greek National Tourist Organization, 645 Fifth Ave., Olympic Tower, New York, N.Y., 10022 or call (212) 421-5777.

FARMERS INSURANCE GROUP

Land getting scarce for hunters

In an era when huntable acres are growing ever more scarce, when personal injury lawsuits result in awards measured by the millions of dollars, and when liability insurance rates climb steadily higher, it is imperative for the hunter and the landowner to review and understand their rights and responsbilities under the law.

Misconceptions regarding the law complicate a contemporary hunting scene already overshadowed by limited access to huntable acres, and the negative image spread by a minority of selfish, thoughtless "slob hunters."

Among the victims are the majority of hunters who find themselves surrounded on all sides by a forest of "No Hunting" signs.

Access to land has always been a pivotal issue for the modern hunter, particularly the urban dweller who lives far away from areas which still provide the space and wildlife habitat essential for hunting success. The issue has taken on renewed importance in light of several major developments promising to reverse the long term decline in wildlife populations.

Upland game projections compiled by the Department of Conservation in 1986 perdict a 30 percent increase in quail, rabbit and pheasant populations. In addition, the U.S. Department of Agriculture is now implementing several important new programs designed to encourage farmers to set-aside highly erodible acres. The keystone in this effort is the Conservation Reserve Program, featuring cash incentives as an enticement for landowners to create additional wildlife habitat.

These federal initiatives come at a most opportune time, coinciding with the creation at the state level of the new Illinois Private Lands Wildlife Habitat Management Program. This program will be implemented by 12 specialized wildlife biologists, trained and experienced in working with the rural community. For the first time, the Department of Conservation has the resources and manpower to reach out and assist landowners with a "hands on" program to create additional wildlife habitat and enhance existing habitat. The cadre of wildlife biologists will prepare wildlife management plans for up to 500 landowners in the program's first year, and actually assist the landowner in implementing the plans.

These state and federal initiatives have the potential to create a wildlife renaissance in Illinois. That promise, however, could be a hollow victory if the growing chasm between the private landowner and the hunter is not bridged. This was one of the educational priorities singled out by the "Place To Hunt Committee." This ad hoc group brought together representatives of the Department of Conservation, Department of Agriculture and the Tourism Division of the Department of Commerce and Community Affairs, as well as a wide array of individuals from the private sector — farm organizations, hunters and landowners — in searching out ways and means to open up private lands for hunters.

The committee focused on the fact that projected social and economic benefits resulting from a renewed and revitalized wildlife population were dependent on reminding hunters of their legal obligations as guests on private land, and dismissing the myths and horror stories about multi-million dollar law suits that have stampeded some landowners into posting their property.

THE LANDOWNER:

Committee member Jack Price, legal counsel for the Department of Conservation, described the liability law suit as more of a perceived problem than a reality for the Illinois landowner. He stressed that the overwhelming majority of farmers and private landowners in the state are adequately protected by present liability insurance coverage, as long as they do not charge individuals for the privilege of hunting. Once hunting fees are charged, however, the landowner assumes added responsibilities under the law. Those landowners who contemplate hunter fees as additional income should contact a reputable insurance company which should be able to provide supplementary coverage at a reasonable rate.

The farmer who does not charge is more than adequately protected, except under specific instances where gross negligence can be proven. This might occur in a case where the landowner failed to notify a hunter that an open cistern was located on his land, or some other situation posing a direct threat to physical safety. Specific statutes in the Illinois legal code elaborate on these cases of "provable...willful or malicious negligence." The include statutes explaing the landowner's responsibility to inform guests of the existence and locations of bulls, or dangerous dogs, that might prove a threat.

These are rare exceptions. The overriding fact is the law protects landowners, giving them the absolute right to deny access to their property to any individual for whatever reason deemed relevant. The law only requires the landowner to notify the public by posted signs or by verbal instructions. The landowner is supported in his rights by sanctions spelled out in Chapter 38 of the Illinois Criminal Code.

The landowner has the right ot charge interlopers either with criminal or civil trespass. The law states that courts can fine a guilty party up to $500, send the individual to jail up to 30 days, place the person on a year's probation, or a combination of these penalties, if found guilty of criminal trespass. Civil trespass charges may be levied by the landowners when damages have resulted on private property. These charges are heard in civil court, and there is no ceiling set on monetary damages. In addition, the landowner has the right to evoke statues with in the Illinois Fish and Wildlife Code to punish individuals found guilty of littering.

Other statutes protect the landowner from capricious and ill-founded nuisance suits. In point of fact, the property owner has recourse to the Malicious Prosecution Act, which states that individuals guilty of filing such law suits may fined "triple" damages.

THE HUNTER:

Illinois hunters should be aware that, under state law, they are strictly a guest on private land, subject to the wishes of the landowner. As a guest, they are required to seek out thelandowner for verbal or written permission to enter private property. This permission must be secured before beginning to hunt on that property. Even in the absence of psoted signes, the hunter is required by law to obey the landowner, should that individual verbally request the hunter to leave.

Hunters are wise to bear in mind that they owe the landowner the respect and consideration due any host. They should be aware that a guest on private land is legally responsible for any harmful actions to property or persons. Littering, propery vandalism, damage to crops, injuring livestock or damaging farm equipment can all be punishable under the law.

Rocks, glaciers shaped the landscape of Illinois

The Illinois State Museum, Springfield, has published the book, "A View of the Past: An Introduction to Illinois Geology" by Christopher J. Schuberth, curator of education. For the first time, a popular book for the amateur rockhound — and anyone with a broad interest about the rocks, fossils and minerals of Illinois — is available, the museum staff said.

A spokesman said, "Illinois's landscapes have followed a long and varied history. At one time, mile-high glaciers almost completely covered the state.

"Herds of elephantlike mastodons and mammoths, giant beavers, bison and tortoises once wandered the Illinois countryside.

"Illinois once lay where the Atlantic Ocean is now, before there was an Atlantic. It also lay along the equator at one time.

"Today, Illinois still moves, still responds to the wrenching, subsurface forces such as those that rocked the bootheel of Missouri — the most powerful earthquakes ever to strike North America — when Illinois, about 175 years ago, was only a frontier state.

"The interplay of geological forces has more than shaped Illinois's landscapes. They have conspired also to form some of the richest deposits on this continent — and in the world. Found here are lodes of lead and zinc; the richest deposits of coal and fluorite; pools of oil; and more.

"This rich and varied geologic history is explored in the book, which includes illustrations, maps and diagrams."

It is available through the Illinois State Museum Society, Spring and Edwards streets, Springfield, Ill 62706, telephone 1-217-782-7386.

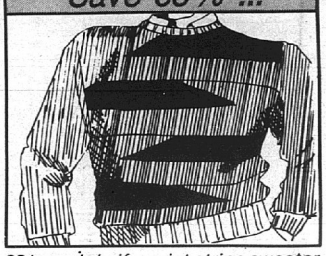

The Illinois State Museum is open to the public Monday through Saturday, 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m., and 1:30 to 5 p.m. on Sunday. Admission is free. The facility is handicapped-accessible, with parking available nearby.

BRIGHT RED apples are waiting to be picked at the market for special treats like Old-Fashioned Apple Pie.

In fall, apples fall into pies and muffins

Apple spice bran muffins

1 cup whole bran cereal
1¼ cups milk
1 cup finely chopped peeled tart apple
1½ cup flour
1 tbsp. baking powder
½ tsp. ginger or cardamom
½ tsp. salt
2 tbsp. sugar
1 egg, slightly beaten
¼ cup oil

Combine bran cereal with milk in medium bowl. Let stand until cereal softens and milk is absorbed, about 10 minutes.

Add chopped apple. Mix well. Stir in combined flour, baking powder, ginger, salt and sugar.

Add egg and oil. Stir until well mixed.

Spoon batter into well-greased or paper-cup lined muffin tin. Bake at 400° for 25 minutes, or until puffed and lightly browned and toothpick inserted into center of muffin comes out clean.

Serve hot with butter.

Makes 12 muffins.

Apple mousse

2 tbsp. butter
½ cup applejack or apple juice
2 lb. (6 to 7 cups) tart apples, peeled cored and chopped
1 envelope unflavored gelatin
1 tbsp. cold water
½ cup brown sugar, firmly packed (See Note)
1 tsp. fresh lemon juice
1 cup heavy cream, whipped to soft peaks
Toasted chopped pecans or shredded coconut

Heat butter in heavy medium saucepan. Add applejack and apples. Bring to boil.

Turn heat to low. Cover and cook 20 to 30 minutes, until apples are very soft. Stir occasionally while mixture is cooking to break up apple pieces.

Beat with sturdy spoon or mixer to make a slightly chunky sauce.

Meanwhile, soften gelatin in cold water. Beat gelatin and brown sugar into hot applesauce. Cool to room temperature. Fold in lemon juice and whipped cream.

Pile mixture into dessert bowls. Chill 2 to 3 hours. Sprinkle heavily with pecans or coconut before serving.

Makes 6 to 8 servings.

Note: Reduce sugar to ⅓ cup if using sweeter apples.

Old-fashioned apple pie

6 to 8 large tart apples, pared and sliced thin
Pastry for 2-crust pie
1 cup sugar
2 tsp. flour
¼ tsp. nutmeg
½ tsp. cinnamon
2 tbsp. butter or margarine

Line 9-inch pie pan with pastry.

Mix sugar, flour, nutmeg and cinnamon. Rub a little sugar mixture into pastry.

Arrange sliced apples overlapping in pan. Add remaining sugar mixture. Dot with butter or margarine.

Cut slits in top crust. Moisten edge of lower crust. Place top crust over apples. Press edges together. Trim.

Bake at 425° for 40 to 45 minutes, or until apples are tender.

Itsy bitsy tuna biscuits

2 pkg. (10 oz. each) refrigerated biscuits
2 tbsp. milk
1 cup (8 oz.) creamed cottage cheese
2 tbsp. milk
1 can (6½ or 7 oz.) tuna, drained, flaked
¼ cup finely chopped walnuts
½ cup chopped, unpared apple
¼ cup raisins, if desired
1/8 tsp. cinnamon
1/8 tsp. nutmeg

Cut biscuits in quarters. Place on ungreased baking sheet. Bake according to package directions 5 to 7 minutes at 350° until golden brown.

Place cottage cheese and milk in container of electric blender. Cover and process until smooth.

In medium bowl, stir cottage cheese mixture, apple, walnuts, raisins, cinnamon and nutmeg into tuna.

Slit biscuits. Fill with tuna mixture.

Yields 80 biscuits. Recipe may be halved, if desired.

Spicy sausage kabobs

½ cup honey
¼ cup spicy brown mustard
¼ cup oil
1 tbsp. soy sauce
2 cloves garlic, minced
1 tsp. ginger
1½ lb. smoked sausage, cut into 1 inch pieces
2 medium green peppers (1 red if available), cut into bite size pieces
8 pearl onions (or small onion wedges)
8 mushroom caps
1 medium zucchini, cut into 1 inch pieces

Prepare marinade by blending honey, mustard, oil, soy sauce, garlic and ginger thoroughly.

Add sausage, peppers, onions, mushrooms and zucchini. Stir. Marinate 1 hour or more, stirring occasionally.

Assemble skewers by alternating sausage and vegetables as desired. Broil 4 minutes on each side, basting with marinade.

Makes 8 kabobs.

Suzanne Corbett to serve tea with traditional sweets

Suzanne Corbett, St. Louis culinary expert, will prepare traditional British tea sandwiches, Scottish shortbread with lemon curd, teatime tarts, dainties and scones in a demonstration Thursday, Nov. 20, in the Jefferson Memorial Building in Forest Park. She will talk about "Planning and Preparing a Colonial Christmas Tea," and invite her audience to taste the holiday fare with tea.

The tea lecture, sponsored by the Women's Association of the Missouri Historical Society, will begin at 1:30 p.m. The cost is $3 per person, payable at the door. Reservations are limited, so they should be made by Monday, Nov. 17, by calling the coordinator of special events (314) 361-1424.

Corbett was a contributing author to Rodale Press' Bread Winners (1979) and Bread Winners Too (1984). She is currently writing an American cookbook.

"The secret to culinary success is versatility," she says.

She illustrates many culinary skills, from historic and basic American to gourmet and pastry techniques in classes and workshops which she teaches in vocational schools and continuing education classes in the St. Louis area.

She was grand champion at the Missouri State Fair in 1980 for cooking and baking in the honey section. In four years of competition she has received more than 150 ribbons and other awards.

Cancer care discussed

(University Hospitals of Cleveland provide "Cancer Care" answers to questions on cancer research, diagnosis and treatment.)

Q. My wife says I'd be foolish to tell my employer I have cancer. I disagree and would like to tell him. What do you think? J.B., Cleveland, Ohio.

A. That decision is a very personal one only you can make. Factors that may help you decide are: the type of treatment you'll have, how long and how often you'll be absent from work, your company's sick leave policy and how well you know your employer or supervisor. If you'll be leaving surgery only and expect to be able to return to work at full capacity, you may choose not to tell your employer the reason for surgery.

If, however, your treatment will involve radiation therapy and/or chemotherapy, you may find it easier or necessary to explain the situation to your employer because of planned time off or unplanned time off from work because of the treatment schedule, the side effects, or both.

Some people feel relieved when they tell their employer and co-workers, both in terms of not having "to keep a secret," and as a means of gaining emotional support. If you do tell your employer you have cancer and then feel that you've been discriminated against in any way, talk with someone in the personnel department.

If that doesn't solve the problem, seek help from an appropriate community agency or an attorney. If you feel unable to return to your job, you'd be wise to look into vocational rehabilitation or retraining. Judy MacKintosh, ACSW, Social Work.

Q. I'm a strong proponent of breast self-examination. I understand that my husband should be doing a monthly exam of his own — of his testicles. What's the proper method of doing this exam? D.E., Westchester, Ill.

A. Self-examination of the testicle is easiest in a quiet and privatr environment, so that involved muscles can relax. Men can perform the examination either lying down or standing. The self-examination should be performed on a monthly basis. Examine each testicle separately, using both hands — one to support the testicle and the other to explore it.

Your husband needs to understand the structures within the scrotum so that he can differentiate the testicle from these other areas. We encourage him to talk with his physician and receive proper instruction firsthand. Maritin I. Resnick, MD, Urology.

Q. My mother's greatest fear as a cancer patient is enduring terrible pain. Is such pain an inevitable part of cancer? Shouldn't heroin be available for cancer patients who suffer terrible pain? Mrs. A.A., Elora, Ill.

Papal struggle in The Mission

A. Having cancer doesn't mean having pain. Only about 60 percent of all cancer patients actually experience pain. The most common cause of pain from cancer is the spread of the disease to the bones and to the nerves.

Some forms of treatment may cause pain — but only for the duration of the treatment. Today, we have access to many good ways to handle the pain and discomfort of cancer. Most patients can be made comfortable with a combination of narcotic and non-narcotic medication — without risk of becoming addicted to any kind of medication.

In some stages of cancer, when pain is more of a problem, a physician may suggest one of several surgical procedures to make a patient relatively pain-free.

Because we now have many excellent ways to treat pain, there's really no reason to make heroin available to cancer patients. Jennifer S. Kriegler, MD. Director, Pain Center

Q. I've just heard that a friend of mine has been diagnosed as having cancer. I don't know if I should say something to her or not the next time I see her. What's the best approach? E.A., Pittsburgh, Pa.

A. The best approach is to wait until your friend is ready to tell you she has cancer. Everyone who's diagnosed with cancer registers different levels of shock, fear and denial.

Your friend needs time to work through some of these feelings before she's able to talke with others.

If she's a casual friend, you should definitely wait until she brings up the subject. If, however, she's an extremely close friend who's having a difficult time sharing this news with you, but who would benefit from your emotional support, you might say something like, "I imagine that begin diagnosed with cancer is a very frightening and lonely experience.

"As your friend, I want you to know that I am here for you whenever you feel ready to talk about it." This lets your friend know that you are not afraid to talk about it and also reassures her of your continuing friendship and support. Judy MacKintosh, ACSW, Social Work

Q. My husband and I disagree on how honest we should be with our seven-year-old daughter about her cancer. He doesn't want to discuss it with her; I'd like to hear a professional opinion. M.T., Streetsboro, Ohio

A. Children today are probably more knowledgeable than we were at the same age. But, receiving medication intravenously, going for CAT scans, X-rays and surgery are not normal experiences for a seven-year-old.

Because of this, you'll need to explain your child's diagnosis and treatment for childhood cancer in terms she can understand. Establishing an avenue of honest communication between you and your child is extremely important.

Parent-child communication that is timely, open and honest will help ease fears and feelings of isolation for your daughter.

Remember, too, that children usually don't worry about the possibility of relapse three years from now. Instead, they worry about how many needle sticks they'll have today. If your seven-year-old asks questions about dying, ask her what caused her to ask at this time. You may learn that the reason she asked has absolutely nothing to do with her illness. She may have been upset because a friend's pet had just died. Jean Troughton, ACSW, Pediatric Social Work

Q. Can you help me undestand MOHs surgery? Is it the only tretment for skin cancer? M.S., Chicago, Ill.

A. MOHs surgery, or MOHs micrographic surgery, is microscopic-controlled surgery for skin cancer. A specially trained surgeon performs the surgery — with the patient under local anesthetic.

The surgeon removes the skin cancer in sequential layers, then examines frozen horiontal sections under a microscope. Because of the direct microscopic control, the cure rates are exceptionally high: 98 percent for primary tumors and 95 percent for recurrent tumors.

Each year, 500,000 new cases of non-melanoma skin cancer are diagnosed in the United States. Many of these can be adequately treated with conventional methods.

MOHs surgery is usually reserved for complicated tumors — recurrent tumors or cancers located near certain body parts, such as the eye, nose, mouth or ear. A dermatologist can diagnose the skin lesion accurately and advise the most appropriate treatment. William S. Lynch, MD, Dermatology

The Mission

The best part of The Mission is its coming attractions.

It's not a bad film. But the script is so pretentious that seeing some of the film's best moments in condensed form while a narrator highlights the action makes the final product look dull by comparison.

The most spectacular scene in The Mission takes place as the film opens. A crucified Jesuit priest is tossed into a river and is carried over a waterfall. It's a single, dramatic and symbolic moment that is never matched in the rest of the film.

Set in the mid-18th century, The Mission is the story of Jesuit priests caught in a struggle between the pope and two of Europe's most influential countries, Spain and Portugal.

A territorial change and the subject of slavery pit two Jesuit priests, played by Robert DeNiro and Jeremy Irons, against the primacy of their own religion. It is right against might, so to speak, and to think these two priests won't struggle against mere mortals for the sake of justice as they see it is to miss the whole point of The Mission.

Shot on scenic, sometimes thrilling locations in Columbia and Argentina, The Mission never lives up to its promise. Directed by Roland Joffe (The Killing Fields) and written by Robert Bolt (Dr. Zhivago, Lawrence of Arabia, The Mission has the texture of a film that is very impressed by itself.

However, there are major flaws. DeNiro reads his lines like he just stepped off a subway in Manhattan. His accent is terrible. Jeremy Irons is better, but he is saddled with a heavy-handed script that contains certain lines that are almost laughable.

Catch the coming attractions for The Mission. If you do that, you will have seen the best this film has to offer.

Barney (Scott McGinnis) and Luke (Jeff Osterhage) are a new breed of wild west heroes in Sky Bandits.

Sky Bandits

Only the very young will enjoy Sky Bandits.

The movie is about two bank robbers in the west around the time Henry Ford's Model T was the hot car of the day.

Scott McGinnis plays Barney and Jeff Osterhage is Luke, two bad men with hearts of gold and teeth to match. Sky Bandits tries hard to make Barney and Luke another Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid.

Paul Newman and Robert Redford are not threatened.

One night Barney and Luke get caught red-handed inside a bank they're robbing. The sheriff gives them a choice. They can wear a jailbird outfit or a United States Army uniform. The boys take the latter and end up on the front lines in France.

Through a set of circumstances best suited to a comic book, Barney and Luke end up flying in the Royal Air Force. They join a suicide squadron and must square off against a dreaded dirigible a half-mile long with guns, bombs and a mean-looking crew in black leather coats.

Sky Bandits was directed by Zoran Perisic, an Oscar-winning visual effects expert. Although Perisic's special visual effects are only average in Sky Bandits, the model and antique aircraft used in this film are interesting.

Too bad the rest of the film is not.

Hope to improve lives of state's older women

The Illinois Council on Aging has been praised for its expanding efforts to improve the lives of older women in Illinois.

"The housing, income and health care needs of older women in Illinois deserve particular attention for a number of reasons," said Gov. James Thompson.

"Not only are there more older women than older men in Illinois, women also are more likely than men to live in or near poverty, more likely to live alone, and more likely to have inadequate housing, health care and pension benefits."

"The Council's published report, which the state is accepting, will be a help to my office, the Department on Aging, lawmakers, aging specialists, community groups and organizations throughout Illinois."

Thompson, who delivered luncheon remarks at the Governor's Conference for the Aging Network, presented a certificate of recognition to Council Chairman Willard C. Rasmussen.

The council, the advisory body to the department, formed the Task Force on the Status of Older Women last November.

For the next five months, the Task Force met 23 times and conducted roundtable sessions and public forums around Illinois to hear testimony from service providers as well as older women.

Needs were examined from the viewpoint of single, married, widowed, rurual, urban and minority older women.

Some of the report's key recommendations include:

- More attention should be paid to the promotion and coordination of the Senior Assistance Network in Illinois, a support program for the elderly.
- More housing options should be made available to older women, since many of them live alone and more face the risk of having inadequate living arrangements.
- More effort should be made to encourage eligible older women to apply for income assistance.
- Wider options should be available to pay for long-term care for older women, who generally have more intensive health care needs than men.
- Expanded abuse prevention and protection programs should be offered since three-fourths of the abused older population are women.

Department on Aging Director Janet Otwell said the state and the council have used some of the recommendations by working with appropriate groups and offices, including the Older Women's League and major women's groups, the American Association of Retired Persons, the Illinois Housing Development Authority, the Department of Insurance and the Social Security Administration.

"In addition," said Otwell, "we have developed a video presentation that highlights Task Force findings and recommendations.

"The council plans to present the 25-minute program, along with its report, at community workshops around the state designed to increase awareness of the needs of older women."

Madison water service installed soon

By Donna Kimbro
Staff writer

A $266,000 infrastructure loan through the Build Illinois program has been released to the City of Madison, Mayor John Bellcoff told the City Council Nov. 4.

State Sen. Sam M. Vadalabene, D-Edwardsville, announced the designation of funds that is expected to create 45 new jobs. The project, Vadalabene said, involves the extension of 7,400 feet of city water line, serving three businesses, Gateway Midstate Truck Plaza, St. Louis International Raceway and a new hotel which is to be built in the near future.

Ray Pratt, owner of the truck plaza, told the council, when Madison annexation of that area was planned in March 1985, that if water service was extended to his property he would construct the hotel.

Vadalabene said, "The new water line will allow Gateway Midstate Truck Plaza to expand its business and create 10 new jobs, as well as build a new motel which will create 35 additional new jobs.

"This project is proof-positive of what Build Illinois was intended to do, improve our infrastructure so that our economy would be healthier and jobs would be created," he said.

The General Assembly approved the project, which Vadalabene sponsored, in the spring 1985 session, the senator said.

In April 1985 the city and the Illinois-American Water Co. entered into an agreement whereby the city would be responsible for maintenance and repair of the water line for a seven-year period, or until the city might seek to change its role in the project (by notifying the water firm a year in advance).

The original plan, approved by the council March 26, provided that after the water line was sold to Madison, Illinois-American would then lease it from the city and agree to repair and maintain the line. One of the changes in April was that the city would pay only the actual cost of repairs.

No date was set for the start of the water line installation, however. With the funds now available, it is believed the water line project can be started soon, Mayor Bellcoff said.

The council also approved a plan to assume a portion of the cost of renovating traffic signal lights along Madison Avenue at Third, Sixth and 12th streets.

The estimate for the city's cost was set at $69,000. The project will be placed for public bidding and the work may be started this year.

Councilmen also approved a request to add Tom Cass and Ralph T. Miller as cadet firemen on the Madison Fire Department.

Medicine Shoppe diabetes screening here on Thursday

A diabetes screening will be offered at Medicine Shoppe pharmacies in the St. Louis and Southern Illinois area on Thursday, Nov. 13, including 3675 Nameoki Road, Granite City.

Qualified professionals will test individuals for signs of diabetes. If a potential problem is detected, participants will be advised to visit a physician for a complete diagnosis.

Diabetes is the third leading cause of death in the U.S. There are more than 12 million diabetics in the U.S.

Meeting Nov. 18 on 2nd new lock

The addition of an auxiliary lock to the Lock and Dam 26 Replacement Project, under construction between Granite City and Alton, is to be the subject of a public meeting.

The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, St. Louis District, has scheduled the session for Tuesday, Nov. 18, at 7:30 p.m. in the Holiday Inn Riverfront, at Pine and Fourth Streets, St. Louis.

This meeting is designed to allow public comment on the draft Environmental Impact Statement (EIS) recently distributed by the Corps.

Comment will also be solicited on the Corps' application for a construction permit, under provisions of the Clean Water Act (1977) and the Rivers and Harbors Act (1899).

The proposed work includes the addition of a 110 x 660-foot auxiliary lock to the previously authorized 110 x 1200-foot main lock, now under construction.

This addition would make the new facility south of Alton equal to the existing Locks 27 structure on the Chain of Rocks Canal, at Granite City.

These two navigation facilities are the only such carrying the combined traffic volume of the Upper Mississippi and Illinois Rivers. Traffic tonnages on this stretch of the inland waterway system have reached levels of 70 million to 80 million tons per year.

The St. Louis meeting is the first in a series of three.

Other meetings are to be held in Davenport, Iowa, Nov. 19 and St. Paul, Minn., Nov. 20.

A similar series of meetings was conducted in 1985, in the same cities, during the planning state of the EIS procedure.

"The Lock and Dam 26 replacement project is designed to eliminate the aging, deteriorating and inadequate facility in use at Alton since 1938," Clyde A. Wilkes of the St. Louis District said.

"The auxiliary lock is primarily intended to prevent shutdown of the inland waterway system in the evnt that an accident or maintenance requirements required closure of the main lock.

"All interested parties are invited to attend and to express their views and comments on the proposal."

Dr. Godfrey to lead revival

Dr. George Godfrey from Hyles-Anderson College will be preaching revival services at Central Baptist Church, 3940 Illinois III, Nov. 16 at 9:45 a.m. and 7 p.m.

He will also be conducting a conference on soul-winning on Saturday, Nov. 15, at the Howard Johnson Motor Lodge conference room on Illinois 157 at I-55/70 from 9 a.m. to noon and 7 to 9 p.m.

He travels across the nation conducting seminars, and is the author of five books including Helps to Have A Soul-Winning Church. He is professor of personal evangelism at Hyles-Anderson College, which enrolls nearly 3,000 students and is operated by First Baptist Church of Hammond, Ind.

Registration for the conference will be taken at the door at a cost of $5 per person or $50 per group of 10 or more and includes both sessions.

The revival day is part of the fall Sunday school drive at Central Baptist, using the theme of "Going Higher." The public is invited, the Rev. Wayne Musatics, pastor, said.

MEMBER OF Phildanco perform an intricate dance movement.

Making ends meet keeps Philadanco with audience

When Joan Myers-Brown formed Philadanco (Philadelphia Dance Company) in 1971, she had two dance schools in which she taught pre-teenagers.

Now Philadanco is a nationally-known dance company, performing dances by such legendary choreographers as Billy Wilson, who choreographed Eubie and Bubblin' Brown Sugar and Louis Johnson, who choreographed the motion picture The Wiz.

For years, modern dance companies had relied on a variety of public funding in order to produce dance concerts and provide for the dancers, choreographers and technicians.

Now that new, more austere government funding programs are in place, company directors like Myers-Brown must turn their creative talents to keeping their companies financially, as well as creatively, alive.

"We own our own facility," Myers Myers-Brown says. "We have our dancers on salary and we have housing furnished for them. But it's a constant treadmill, because you still have to generate funds for the upkeep. You still have to pay teachers. You keep having to get money to do the things you have got to do.

"I think running the programs the way we do - the training programs, the performance company, the school all together, makes for a solid foundation for what we're doing."

Joan Myers Brown

One survival tactic which Philadanco has utilized has been to adapt to the marketplace by searching out the needs and desires of their natural audience - the Philadelphia school system.

"A lot of the schools in the minority area, which are predominantly black and Hispanic, felt that the kids wanted to see something other than 'The Nutcracker' at Christmas time, because there were very few black kids in 'The Nutcracker.' They wanted to see dance that black kids were doing. They wanted to know, 'What can I do if I take dancing.'

"We did a ballet based on Scott Joplin's folk opera, 'Treemonisha.' It was choreographed by Louis Johnson. We had sellout audiences at each performance because the schools were flocking to see it," she says.

Other ideas which proved sound for Myers-Brown and Philadanco include a program entitled "200 Years of Black American Dance," which was originally done during the United States bicentennial, and is being revived this year for the bicentennial of the U.S. Constitution.

Philadanco will be appearing at the St. Louis Art Museum at 8 p.m. Nov. 15 and at 6 p.m. Nov. 16. Tickets are $12 for adults, $9 for students with a valid I.D. and $6 for senior citizens. The concert is a presentation of the St. Louis Black Repertory Company.

Among the dances are "Ritornello," to music by Bach, and "Conversations," a modern dance which uses as its soundscape the recorded speeches of Martin Luther King Jr. Both were choreographed by Gene Hill Sagan.

The programs will also feature dances choreographed by Billy Wilson and Louis Johnson.

For information on Phildanco concert, call (314) 231-3706.

Radio interviews from Art Museum

A weekly interview series is now airing on KWMU Radio. The series, "Live from The St. Louis Art Museum," is broadcast live on 90.7 FM from the Museum's Cafe Beaux Arts at 1 p.m. on Thursdays.

The Cafe Beaux Arts was chosen by KWMU as the site for the remote broadcasts because of its obvious arts ambiance.

"Live from the St. Louis Art Museum" is funded by the Missouri Arts Council.

VIDEO NEWS & REVIEWS

By Nick Pacino

Space Camp first of week's video releases

Kate Capshaw stars in the entertaining adventure Spacecamp (1986), out this week from Vestron Video. The plot centers around a lively group of teens whose summer at a camp for future astronauts turns into an unexpected space shuttle voyage.

Inspired by the space camp in Huntsville, Ala., the film features Capshaw as a camp instructor and an untried astronaut. A troublesome robot named Jinx accidentally causes the shuttle to launch while it is filled with the campers.

Young teens will find the plot fascinating. The able cast includes Kelly Preston, Leu Thompson, Leaf Phoenix and Tom Skerritt. Rating PG (language), color, 107 minutes, VHS/Beta HiFi.

■ Another movie inspired by a true story is On the Edge (1986), a sports drama, starring Bruce Dern as Wes Holman.

Holman, a promising runner, was banned from amateur competition 20 years ago for accepting money to run. Holman, now middle-aged, is determined to recapture his lost fame by running in the Northern California Circle Sea Races, a brutal seven-mile-marathon over a mountain range.

There are some editing problems with this low-budget film, but even weekend joggers will empathize with Holman's hard-boiled determination to compete. And prepare for a spirited, surprise ending. Rating PG-13 (language), color, 86 minutes, VHS/Beta.

■ Steve McQueen makes a perfect Junior Bonner (1972), released by Playhouse Video. This superb comedy-drama has McQueen in the title role as a former rodeo star who returns home to his down-and-out parents, played by Robert Preston and Ida Lupino.

To help his parents and restore his pride, Junior decides to take on a bellicose bull in a coming rodeo.

Director Sam Peckinpaugh, who comes from pioneer western film stock, was predisposed toward using the wide-open spaces for background and it works very well in this film. Ben Johnson and Joe Don Baker round out the talented cast. Rating PG, color, 103 minutes, VHS/Beta HiFi.

■ Highlander (1986), a new release from HBO/Cannon Video, is a flashback fantasy adventure about a workbreed of humans who can only be killed by being decapitated with a sword by one of their own.

The struggle begins in 16th century Scotland and climaxes with a pitched battle in the streets of modern Manhattan. The antagonists, who do not age, struggle for possession of "the prize," which conveys ultimate knowledge and power. Christopher Lambert and Clancy Brown are two of the remaining combatants.

Sean Connery plays in one of the flashbacks and Roxanne Hart is a New York City police detective who falls for Lambert. Highlander is a bit confusing at times. The film is filled with a thundering rock score by the British rock group, Queen, and has an MTV aura provided by award-winning music video director Russell Mulcahy. Rating R (violence, sex, language), color, 110 minutes, VHS/Beta.

■ Trivia Corner: Last week's answer - Born Julia Jean Mildred Frances Turner in 1920, Lana Turner earned a Best Actress Oscar nomination for Peyton Place (1957). This week's question: Bob Hope's theme song, "Thanks For The Memories" won Best Song Oscar from what movie? Answer here next week.

Apprenticeship program chooses local traditional master artists

Several St. Louis musicians and artists have been selected by a statewide panel of experts for participation in the Traditional Arts Apprenticeship Program. The program is designed to encourage survival of the traditional arts in communities by paying a stipend to temporarily allow masters to put aside regular work and pass on their skills to less-experienced apprentices.

The master artists selected are: Martin Bergin, a saddlemaker who produces custom saddles for working cowboys; Lillie Mable Hall, a celebrated cook in the Afro-American culinary tradition; Valerie Hazelton, an Irish step-dancer; Saengphet Louangphom, a kaen musician from the Laotian community; Richard Martin, a tapdancer and nephew of Josephine Baker;

Larry McNally, an Irish button-box accordian player; Malverna Richardson, a quilter; Henry Townsend, a blues musician and the only Missourian to have won the National Heritage Award; Art Treppler, a Slovenian button-box musician; and Mae Wheeler, a jazz and gospel vocalist.

For information, write: Margot Roberson, Missouri Cultural Heritage Center, University of Missouri-Columbia, Columbia, Mo. 65211; or call 314-882-6296.

Flyers gain revenge; drub Warriors, 20-0

By Gregg Ochoa
Executive Sports Editor

GRANITE CITY — For the first time in four years, the East St. Louis Flyers had revenge as a motive for a football game.

East Side had a score to settle with the Warriors, the only team to beat them in their last 50 games, and they used the second round of the IHSA Class 6A playoffs to call in the IOU's.

The Flyers advanced to the quarterfinals with a commanding 20-0 win over Granite City Saturday at Memorial Stadium.

They did it the old-fashioned way, using the big plays to smother the Warriors and then sealing the victory with tough defense.

"They just beat us up," said Warrior coach Ron Yates. "There's no excuses. They controlled both sides of the line of scrimmage. I wish them the best of luck and hope they win the whole thing."

East St. Louis, winners of the last three 6A state crowns, rolled to the win. The Flyers piled up 459 yards total offense — 392 on the ground.

Marvin Lampkin was the big gun. He ran 23 times for a whopping 224 yards and two touchdowns.

"It's been a bad season for me, personally," said Lampkin, who was knocked out of the first game.

"I've had a lot of injuries. I felt like I had to come alive."

The Flyers entered the game without quarterback/running back Kerwin Price, who broke his ankle in a 7-0 win over Belleville East in the first round.

That put the spotlight on junior Lennie Gooch, who spent most of the game handing the ball off to Lampkin and Mondale Clark and watching the Flyer speedsters run.

"The kids really rallied around Gooch," said East Side coach Bob Shannon. "They didn't put him in a situation where he felt like he had to do it all himself."

Gooch didn't have to bear the whole burden. The Flyer defense took care of that.

East St. Louis limited the Warriors to just 82 yards of total offense (19 yards rushing and 63 yards passing). The Warriors managed just six first downs and crossed midfield twice during the game.

"We couldn't do anything on offense," Yates said. "It was a different team since the first time we faced them."

"We played hard, tough football," Shannon said. "You saw the hitting and the physical type defense that we normally play."

Things looked bright for the Warriors after Tim Hogan intercepted a Gooch pass deep in Granite City territory, snuffing the Flyers' first drive.

Granite City, however, couldn't do anything on its next two possessions and the first quarter ended in a scoreless tie.

East Side scored the first two times they touched the ball in the second quarter.

Clark put the Flyers up 7-0 with a 38-yard burst off tackle just eight seconds into the period.

Granite City got the ball back, but a holding penalty stalled the drive on its own 39. The Flyers got the ball back and needed just one snap to double the lead.

Lampkin scored on a 61-yard run, and with 8:53 left in the first half, it was 13-0.

"They started to pound it out on the ground, and when they found out they could move it with some success, they just took it to us," Yates said. "I figured they would come out charging."

In the first encounter back on Oct. 4, the Warriors took away the big play attack of the Flyers. They made East St. Louis drive the ball.

This time around, the Flyers' offense exploded like a Roman Candle on the Fourth of July.

"There's not a whole lot to be said," Yates said. "We didn't stop their big plays and we missed a lot of tackles."

The Flyers played like a team possessed. They were on a mission.

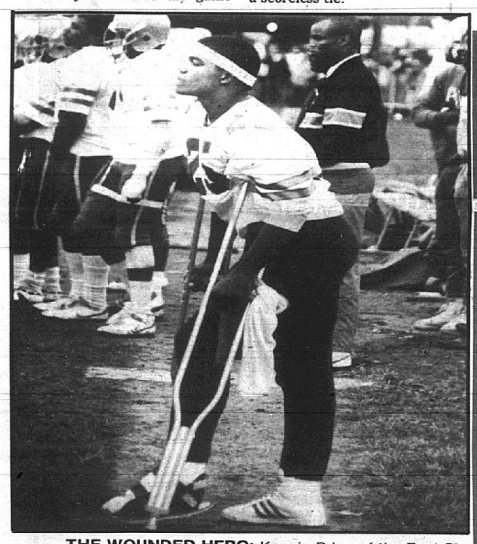

"We're finally coming together as a team," Shannon said. "This is the time of year we need to have that type of effort. With Kerwin out, the kids knew they didn't have someone else to lean on. They

Flyers, Lampkin tie up some loose ends

GRANITE CITY — So this is how it ends for the football Warriors.

Saturday began bright and sunny in Granite City. It ended dark, gloomy and rainy. That's literally and figuratively.

Warrior fans filed rather quietly out of Memorial Stadium shortly after 3 p.m., in stark contrast to the wild celebration that took place at about the same time, in the same place, just five weeks earlier.

On that red-letter date, Oct. 4, 1986, Granite City had done the unthinkable. They had ended East St. Louis' 44-game winning streak with a 17-14 win over the Flyers, paved the way for the first Southwestern Conference title in Granite City since 1946.

It also helped bring about a rematch of the same two teams in the second round of the Illinois Class 6A playoffs. And this time, the Flyers came with a purpose. They had their chin straps buckled, then proceeded to unbuckle some Warrior chin straps.

It's really a credit to Granite City that the score was only 20-0. East Side has probably played other games in recent years with the same field position and a similar ravenous defense and scored 50 or 60 points. The Warriors, though obviously dominated, didn't let that happen.

But the Flyers didn't let something else happen. And that was a repeat performance of the Oct. 4 show.

"We had some people out of the lineup then," said Flyer coach Bob Shannon. "I don't want to make excuses, because Granite City outplayed us that day. But we were ready to get them today."

Talk of a repeat performance heightened late in the week when East St. Louis' best offensive player, Kerwin Price, suffered a broken ankle in a first round game at Belleville East. The Warriors beat 'em with Price, surely they could beat 'em without Price.

That might have worked were it not for a stocky senior tailback named Marvin Lampkin. Granite City fans might not remember Lampkin from the first game, because Steve Sutphin of the Warriors put him out of the game in the opening moments with a big hit.

So where it was up to Price to make up for Lampkin's absence Oct. 4, it was Lampkin's turn Nov. 8. He responded with a mere 220 yards rushing and two long touchdown runs (61 and 67 yards). With Price watching on crutches along the sidelines, Lampkin was

Perry to speak at park district awards banquet

Pat Perry, a lefthanded relief pitcher for the St. Louis Baseball Cardinals, will be the featured speaker at the Granite City Park District's annual Sports Award Banquet.

The banquet will be held tomorrow night, Nov. 13, at the Granite City Township Hall, with dinner being served at 6:15 p.m.

Perry was called up to the Cardinals near the end of the 1985 season and pitched four scoreless innings in his major league debut in a big September game in New York, when the Cardinals and Mets were fighting for the division title.

Cardinal reliever Ken Dayley was originally scheduled to appear at the banquet, but Dayley's wife had a baby this week and he was unable to attend.

Game

knew they had to get the job done."

The loss to the Warriors perhaps woke the Flyers up. They were no longer the invincible giants of the prep football world.

"We needed to prove some things, especially to ourselves," Lampkin said.

Granite City's offensive woes continued in the second half. Jamie Hogan, the Warriors' ace receiver who had dazzled Quincy in Granite City's first round victory, constantly drew a crowd of defenders.

He caught just two passes for 20 yards. Paul Sutter also had two receptions.

"In the past, when Jamie drew double coverage, we were able to look him off and find a secondary receiver," Yates said. "But they pressured us and we didn't have enough time."

The Flyers' defense limited Tim Hogan to just 7 of 17 passing for a modest 63 yards.

The Flyers wrapped up the scoring with 3:09 left in the third quarter on a 64-yard scamper by (who else?) Lampkin. Robert Alexander kicked the PAT for the final 20-0 count.

"Our Achilles heel all year has been our inability to stop the run and we had problems again today," Yates said.

Besides Lampkin, Clark finished with eight carries for 56 yards. East Side totalled 12 first downs.

To the Warriors' credit, the score could have been much worse. But Granite City played hard until the final gun.

"I'm really proud of this team," Yates said. "We accomplished an awful lot to win eight games.

"It will be very hard to let this season go," said Yates, fighting back the tears.

Madison FCA sponsoring charity game

The Madison Senior High Fellowship of Christian Athletes, along with the Madson Middle School Huddle of FCA is sponsoring the fourth annual Charity Benefit Basketball Game for needy families in Madson.

The benefit will be held Friday, Nov. 21, at the Madison High School gym from 6 p.m. to 10 p.m. Last year, more than 575 cans were collected and 52 food baskets were given out.

The admission for the game will be $1 for students and $2 for adults. The FCA is asking that donations be brought in the form of canned goods (two cans for students and four for adults). They will be distributed to needy families throughout the community.

Rich Essington and his basketball team have agreed to put on a demonstration basketball game, pitting the juniors against the seniors. The preliminary game will feature the middle school seventh graders against the eighth graders for one half, and the middle school faculty against the FCA team for a half.

Mark Giles and Charles Steptoe are sponsors for the Madison Senior High huddle. Albert Collins is the sponsor for the middle school huddle.

Unit 12 administrators, principals and the district social worker will select the names of the needy families. Anyone having a particular family in mind can contact Arthur Carter, the high school principal, at 876-7010 before 4 p.m. Nov. 21.

There will be two turkeys given away at half time of the second game as a door prize.

THE SCOREBOARD tells the story as Todd Jones of the Stars passes the ball past Lewis and Clark's Sam Schaefer during Saturday's NJCAA Region 24 title game in Godfrey. The Stars eventually lost to the Bucks 4-0, ending their season at 9-12-2.

Stars eliminated by Bucks

By John Twombly
Correspondent

GODFREY — A dream? More appropriately, a nightmare for the soccer team from Granite City Campus? Deja vu, man.

Lewis and Clark defeated the Stars Saturday, 4-0. Rob Frazier, Dean Kasting and Brian Shields scored for Lewis and Clark.

Wait a second...that also happened the last time the Stars went to Godfrey to play the Bucks Sept. 10.

The difference in the two matches? Because Lewis and Clark won Saturday, they earned the National Junior College Athletic Association Region 24 championship trophy. The Bucks will visit Dupage Nov. 15 in their next game with a 15-2-1 record.

The Stars have no games left. They end the season at 9-12-2.

Is Granite City Campus head coach Larry Petri surprised?

"I've said all along they're a good team, probably a better team," said Petri minutes after the game, referring to the Bucks. "After we got down a couple goals in the second half, it was just icing. It's important they got that third goal in the second half."

Nevertheless, Petri thinks the Stars played a better game against Lewis and Clark than the past two times the teams met.

In addition to the Sept. 10 game, the Stars lost to the Bucks 2-1 Oct. 27 in Granite City.

First-year Bucks head coach Tim Rooney, a former assistant under such coaches as Florissant Valley's Pete Sorber and the St. Louis Steamers' Pat McBride, thinks Lewis and Clark deserves its playoff advance.

"We had good overall team effort and we've worked hard all year," said Rooney, who replaced the founder of the Bucks' soccer program, Ed Huneke — now at SIUE — as coach. "That's not taking anything away from Granite City — they have a good team. Any time we beat a team three times in a season, I think we belong there (in the NJCAA tourney)."

The goal scorer in Saturday's game who didn't score in the Sept. 10 contest is Charlie Clark. Clark accounted for the second Bucks goal when he took a pass from Pat Melson and kicked the ball past Stars goalkeeper Chris Sondkers.

According to Rooney, during the game Granite City Center "burnt us pretty well on an offside trap" when Lewis and Clark forwards would run past Stars defenders before an attempted forward pass from midfield.

Otherwise, though, it was a nightmarish return to Godfrey for the Stars. And a second unhappy ride home, only this time for the rest of the season.

Flyers

just what the doctor ordered.

"We like people feeling sorry for us," said Shannon after the game. "It doesn't happen very often. If people want to think we'll be vulnerable because Price isn't playing, that's fine. Marvin is a pretty good back. He needs a couple more games at that position. We still think we're better with him at fullback and Mondale (Clark) or Jason Ford at tailback. But Mondale did a pretty good job today."

Clark had the game's first score early in the second quarter on a 38-yard run.

"We wanted to play them again," Shannon said of the Warriors. "One thing we did today was double-cover Jamie Hogan, which we didn't do last time. The Hogans are a great combination, and we felt we had to contain them a little better.

"Other than that, we didn't really change my strategy. We just executed a bit better than we did in the first game here.

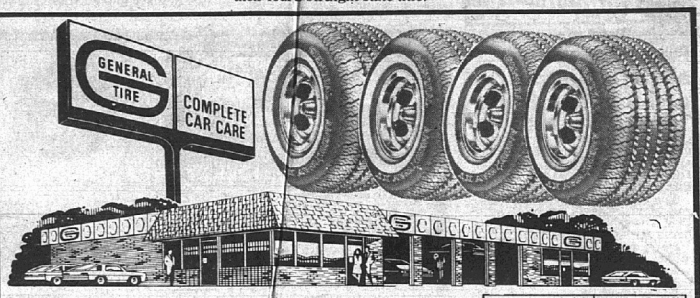

"Ron Yates is a fine coach, and he's got a great program going here. They should have a good team for a while."

The Flyers also should have a pretty good team for a while. Probably for at least another two and a half weeks, as they take a run at their fourth straight state title.

Kahoks take title

JEFF DEUTSCH of the Collinsville soccer team boots the ball away from Granite City's Jeff Grote during last week's sectional title game the Kahoks won 1-0 at SIUE. Collinsville returned the state title to Southern Illinois for the first time in four years with a 2-1 win over Libertyville Saturday night in Palatine. Tim Johnson, who had the goal against Granite City, got the winner in the second sudden death period against Libertyville. Collinsville beat St. Charles 1-0 on a Johnson goal Friday in the quarterfinals, then beat New Trier 1-0 on penalty kicks in the semifinals Saturday morning. They played 197 minutes of soccer — plus the penalty kicks — on Saturday alone.

Levin among top ten in NAIA scoring

Brian Levin, a sophomore from Granite City, dropped from fifth to ninth last week in kick scoring in the NAIA, according to stats from the national office in Kansas City.

Levin, who is a placekicker for Peru State (Neb.), is averaging 5.29 points per game after six games. He dropped from six points per game the previous week after kicking only one extra point in the Bobcats' 15-13 loss to Westmar (Iowa) College.

Levin is the son of Roger and Judith Levin, 2565 Ivy Lane.
